“ Jerry was not only a brother he was also a friend, I loved talking with Jerry and giving him a hard time about anything, we both got a kick out of being messed with. Jerry came to stay with me for awhile in Fort Worth when he first got back from the Nam. I lived close to Carswell Air Force Base and he hated to airplanes taking off and landing they really made him nervous. I had not been out of the Air Force long and after working all around the Air Planes all the time the Air Force noises did not bother me. There is a big difference in Civilian planes and Military planes. The noise level is very different.

I miss this Jarhead a bunch, Just about every day I think of something I would like to talk with him about, I hope to see him sometime in the future, I loved him and he was my favorite brother.
